To My Seniors

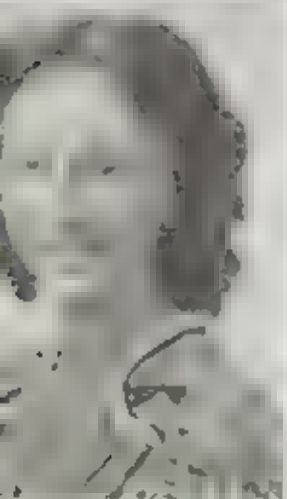

*The day is not far distant,
When each of you
Has gone your separate way.
No longer will there be need,
To call you all together
To plan class projects
No longer must you be urged
To give your all
Down to your last farthing.
Or to share unstintingly
Of time and worthy service
Together we've shared
Troublesome hours,*

*And others far more pleasant.
And, now, today,
With farewells in the offing,
My heart is strangely sad
Even while I do behold
How proudly you display
The symbols of your achievement.
Oh — may you ever
Keep your youthful courage,
Never be easily daunted
And in the end,
Look back with pride
Upon every hour of every day.*

CLASS HISTORY

We began our quest for knowledge back in the year of 1937. Determined to fight and conquer the battle of life, we prepared to arm ourselves with that all-important weapon of education.

We, like most normal classes, didn't take our freshman year very seriously. The majority of us possess more of a desire to play practical jokes rather than concentrate on the vast problem of raising necessary money and studying daily assignments. However, between our amusement periods we did find time to sponsor various projects and elect four capable leaders to guide us through our first tempestuous year. We chose for our president Kay Hager; as our vice-president, Bill Lackey; Ruth Becker as secretary; and Leatha Tanner as treasurer. To raise money we sold everything from candy to valentines.

When we glance briefly at the high spots of our freshman year, we must also remember the adventures in the Biology classes. While the teacher focused her attention on one half of the class, which was studiously dissecting apples, the other half was busy eating them.

Immediately after our passage from our freshman into our sophomore year, we realized that a specific financial goal had to be attained. This sudden realization caused the business geniuses of the class to expose themselves. From that time on we kept them busy creating money-making enterprises. These projects included selling holiday trinkets and editing a Christmas newspaper. Incidentally, the editor of this successful publication was Bill Lackey.

We entrusted our class officers to Ray Moore as president, Jan Siple as vice-president, and Vivian Walstra as secretary-treasurer. On the basis of our financial outcome we regard our sophomore year as highly successful, thanks to a capable advisor, Mary Frances Miller, and to the cooperation of the officers and the class as a whole.

As juniors we plunged with renewed energy into our "Big Year." Foremost in our minds was our desire to make money so that we could present the seniors with an unforgettable banquet. Our first task was to elect capable officers who would lead us successfully through the swamp of competition and bad breaks. With Wayne Redner as president, Richard Fox as vice president, Bob Bolthouse as secretary, and Kay Hager as treasurer, we couldn't miss.

The various schemes we used during our junior year to earn money are too numerous to mention here. The most important of them were our home-coming dance and our radio raffle; and, of course, the big event was our junior play captioned "Heart Trouble." We will never forget the long hours of intensified rehearsing, those few nervous moments before curtain time, and the large audiences which turned out for us.

There was only a short lapse of time from the conclusion of our play until the time of the Junior-Senior Banquet. We will always remember the hustling and work it took to prepare Godwin's gym for the big night. The Dutch theme was cleverly worked out to the last detail. Remember Ev Hunt's orchestra swinging it among the tulips and windmills? The entire evening is indelibly stamped in each of our minds.

As the seniors of 1941 we come to the last chapter of our unity. At the beginning of the year we made a tour through a local bank. Later some of the class members attended a political convention which was being held in Grand Rapids.

The major event of the year as far as finances were concerned was our senior play, "Spring Fever." Again some of the members of the class tried their hands at dramatics under the guidance of Mrs. Harbaugh. The result was a fast-moving comedy designed to make the audience forget its troubles during the lapse of time occupied with its presentation.

Our final project was an annual, the fifth publication of a Godwin yearbook. Under the leadership of Kay Hager as editor, Jan Siple as associate editor, Bill Lackey and Lloyd Backart as business managers, and Larry Van Allsburg as sports editor, we published the 1941 Wolverine.

Thus our high schooling has ended. Armed with the fundamentals of education, we leave our dear Alma Mater to seek our fortunes. Some will go on to the universities and colleges of our fair land. Others will enter businesses and make homes. Though widely we be scattered one bond is shared by us all — the ties of friendship formed in school.

In closing, we seniors of 1941 wish to express our deepest gratitude and appreciation to the teachers and parents who have helped us receive our education. And especially do we want to thank Miss Klenk, our advisor in '40 and '41. We will be indebted to her forever for the priceless advice, guidance, and assistance she has given us.

Respectfully submitted,
Allert Wiersma, Class Historian

SENIOR PICNIC

UNDERCLASSEN

CLASS of 1942

This year the thoughts of the Juniors naturally turned to filling the class treasury. We had to earn some money to give our treasurer something to do. The year was started off with a bang by a "get acquainted" dance. We gave every kind of sale imaginable — but that wasn't work! The real experience came with the Junior Play, "The Night of January 16." The cast rehearsed every school night from seven to ten. (This explains all the snores in the Junior classes.) There was so much to do and so little time in which to do it that everyone's temper was worn to the last thread. At last the big night arrived, and we'll never forget it! Can you imagine Lorene Faass as the defendant at a murder trial and Harry Wilson, as the District Attorney, trying to convict her? We don't blame the jury for bringing in a favorable verdict.

Then came the most thrilling event of the year — the Dinner Dance. Eight persons were chosen to decide which theme we should use. Many different ideas were presented but the students chose Hawaii. Hawaii, with its mountains, palm trees, pineapple plantations, and moonlight shining on the ocean waves, was very beautifully done and proved to be a perfect closing of the year's activities.

The Sophomore Class year was opened by the election of our class officers at our first meeting. Our hopes of "sweet revenge" were dashed to the ground by the discontinuance of the initiation parties — but maybe it was for the good of all.

Under the leadership of Miss Chynoweth we immediately foresaw our privilege of being "big shots" in the senior high for three years. The future would hold such interesting events as a Junior Prom, class plays, and the really big undertaking of editing an Annual

Our first project was a successful roller skating party at Ramona Gardens. It was followed by the "February Frolic," a sport dance with Victrola music and a "bang up" floor show. It's still a mystery to us how no broken bones resulted from the efforts of one of our young ladies to give the gym floor a truly "royal" waxing

The daily routine of the "Sophs" was pleasantly interrupted by fire drills, interesting assemblies, parties, and some good movies (thanks to Mr. Ward)

We will spend many happy hours in reminiscence of these days of 1941. It is with joyous anticipation that we look forward to the attainment of our highest goal — our graduation in '43

A group plan for the 1941-42 year was being made during the first semester. The Annual Club was not organized until the second semester. A letter to members was given in January of 1942. Several members were more active working in the club during the weekly meetings.

Activities were directed by Kay Hager as editor. The club was organized with the editor. The club members were B. Lull and L. Backart. The club editor was Lull. Van Aken was the club editor. Wayne Rogers, Copy Editor and Editor were given by Lull. Brown and E. Hilt. E. Van Felt was the club editor.

Through the club the group meetings were made. Much of the publicity was done by Mr. Saur.

Godwin is a good fortune in having one of the best paper for a club of its size. The paper is put out once a month under the guidance of Mr. Courtwright.

The Commercial Club had its first monthly meeting in September 1914. At that time the club was organized for the year. Some of the meetings were entirely devoted to the regular business of the club while others offered an opportunity for citizens to increase their knowledge of the business world.

Several demonstrations of business machines were given. Among the more outstanding demonstrations were those by Mr. A. Smith from the Mimeograph Company and Mr. M. L. Brynildsen who represented the Underwood Electric Typewriter Company.

Mr. Reed from the City School Employment Service was another interesting speaker who gave many helpful suggestions regarding employer and employee relations.

After dinner the interested students was a picnic

Group Zetegard the Senior Camp Fire Girls of Godwin has completed its seventh year. All of the girls have finished the lower ranks and twelve have attained Social Leadership which is the highest honor Camp Fire girls can receive. Jean Nicholson, Betty Conklin, Leona Tanner, Leona Paxson, Betty Bush, and Maudie Townsend received these honors and are now leading a group of younger girls.

This year, the group worked to help the British Relief Workers and kept up with their studies, maintaining the ideals of every Camp Fire girl.

The Junior Camp Fire Girls of Godwin consists of five groups under the leadership of Mrs. Jean Jenkins, Jean Nicholson, Betty Conklin, Leona Tanner, Betty Bushoff, Leona Paxson, and Maudie Townsend with her group of twelve the Blue Birds.

These groups spend much of the year in passing ranks and advancing toward the highest goal in Camp Fire, Social Leadership. They have gone on picnics, learned to cook in the woods, and have spent a week at Camp Keewano in Lake Michigan.

OUR BAND

Prior to two years ago music played the rear rank and trailed along as an extra curricular subject but today we realize that music by virtue of its own power, has assumed a new role — that of leadership.

Psychologists have always realized that the road to action is through an appeal to the heart and it is precisely this avenue that the Band was used to stir the student body.

The appeal, support, and spirit of the Band have touched a new spark and today we see and feel the need of such an action stirring organization as we have under Mr. Smith.

From the objective viewpoint, we also are aware of the influence of the group. See them sometime as they parade the streets in their new uniforms thanks to the Band Mothers or take one of their many public appearances.

ORCHESTRA

During this fourth consecutive year the orchestra has played for the Junior-Senior and P. T. A. plays and with performances in the May Festival and Flickies, not forgetting the ever popular Christmas Cantata. Probably the most enjoyed performances are the Broadway Melody and Christmas Instrument Exercises.

The orchestra boasts of a complete string section, including violins, viola, and cellos which have participated in the Mothers Day Tea and the Senior Reception. Without doubt the orchestra has its best woodwind section this year. The brass and percussion sections have been augmented by young players who will be a great asset in the future.

It is with regret we say good bye to three capable senior members, Ruth Becker, Roland Doney, and Jeannette Stone. We are ever indebted to Miss Flynn, Mrs. Harbaugh, and Mr. Smith for their efficient assistance at our performances.

FOOTBALL

When Coach Miller issued the call for football practice, thirty candidates responded. These boys did their utmost to gain positions on the team.

The season was not as successful as some in the past which is shown by score record. Due to the light, green material the team failed to enter in the victory column.

A great deal of credit goes to Mr. Miller and Mr. Sikkema, for as coaches they instilled within the boys that "never-say die" spirit and that fair play impulse which have urged the team to play on. It was their work that constantly kept before us an ideal of true athletic spirit, teaching us the real meaning of the words, "good losers."

At a meeting of the lettermen, Wayne Redner was chosen captain and later Russ Bullis was appointed football manager.

Next year Godwin is expected to have a better team since many regulars are expected to return. Watch the team of 1942!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The 1940-41 season witnessed one of the most spectacular teams of girls' basketball in the history of Godwin. This team consisted of 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th grade girls, fighting furiously together through all competitive games. Although they took the first two games of the season from age-old opponents, Kelloggsville and Grandville they lost two exceptionally well played games to Comstock Park. Other games were equally exciting.

There were also several practice games with other schools, and among themselves throughout the year, furnishing plenty of excitement for many students and teachers.

The highlight of the season was the All-Star game between Godwin and Kelloggsville. The team consisted of 9th and 10th grade girls; and the other the 11th and 12th. These girls were chosen by nomination in the gym class.

then by votes in the Girls' League. Every girl in the League voted for her grade team.

The full credit of such a successful year goes to Mrs. Jean Ballard Jenkins, Johnny Fello, and Mr. Sargent.

The tennis team after dropping their first three matches to Rockford, and Grandville came back strong to defeat Lee 3-0.

Veteran team last year included Rhoades, Redner, Warren, and Schooley. The team also has several promising newcomers.

With every indication, the boys will have a very successful season.
